Response to Amendment

1. The declaration filed on 7/14/2004 under 37 CFR 1.131 is sufficient to overcome the Braund [US 6,373,942] reference.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jones [US 6,606,506] in view of Parmentier [US 6,442,375].

Regarding claims 1,2,13,15, Jones discloses a personal entertainment and communication device having a headset electronically connected to the master unit/communication unit. Jones further discloses a method for transferring audio signals of a call between the mobile station and the headset (see col. 1, line 55 – col. 2, line 20, col. 4, lines 1-49). Jones further discloses a method to transfer files between the master unit/communication unit and the headset (see col. 5, lines 5-65, col. 6, lines 14-60) and a memory means to store these files (see Figs. 2,3 and 4 and col. 3, lines 8-38 and col. 5, lines 6-19, col. 6, lines 14-60). See also background of invention

Art Unit: 2684

Jones however does not disclose a method wherein short-range transceivers are used in the headset and the master/communication unit for wireless communication between the headset and the master/communication unit.

It is well known in the art as taught by Parmentier to use such short-range transceivers between various devices such as headset and communication unit as a cable replacement technology. See col. 8, line 60 – col. 9, line 12.

Therefore it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use short range transceivers as taught by Parmentier in Jones invention as not only for cable replacement but also enable the user with more flexibility and convenient use of headphones and further to reduce the level of microwave radiation to which the user is exposed, than the ordinary telephone, with the help of short-range transceivers.

Regarding claim 3, Jones further discloses the files to be user files. See background of invention, col. 5, lines 5-65, col. 6, lines 14-60.

Regarding claim 4, Jones further discloses the memory in the headset to be a detachable memory. See Fig. 2, col. 3, lines 24-38.

Regarding claim 5, Jones discloses the headset to comprise of a speaker and a microphone. See col. 1, line 66 – col. 2, line 2.

Art Unit: 2684

Regarding claim 6, Jones further discloses a method where the headset comprises a user interface and the master/communication unit is arranged to control the user interface. See col. 3, lines 9-67.

Regarding claim 7,16, Jones further discloses a headset comprising of a multimedia player. See summary of invention, abstract and col. 1, lines 9-23, Figs. 1 and 6.

Regarding claims 8,14, Jones discloses two earpieces in the headset and as a multimedia player an audio player that is arranged to play music in the earpieces. See summary of invention, abstract and col. 1, lines 9-23, Figs. 1 and 6.

Regarding claims 9,10, Jones further discloses a method wherein the audio player is arranged to play music by decoding a music file which is stored in the head set and further the multimedia player comprising of a number of functions that the mobile station is arranged to control over short-range radio connection. See summary of invention, col. 3, lines 9-38, Figs. 1 and 6.

Regarding claim 11, Jones discloses the communication unit to be a mobile station of a cellular network. See background of invention, col. 3, lines 52-67.

Art Unit: 2684

Regarding claim 12, Parmentier teaches the use of Bluetooth technology for short-range communication between the headset and the mobile communication device. See col. 8, line 60 – col. 9, line 12.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Bjorndahl [US 2002/0065099] System and method and apparatus for secure transmission of confidential information

Jenkins [US 2001/0025289] Wireless pen input device

Iwata [US 2002/0045454] Radio communication connection destination specifying method

Lanzaro [US 2002/0000470] Portable data collection system
